Thank you for choosing to take away order from Sakura Restaurant.

We would like to introduce you to the fish used in Sakura Restaurant's sushi.

Sakura Restaurant uses bluefin tuna, which other restaurants in Aachen do not use. Other restaurants use yellowfin tuna, so you can fully appreciate the difference in taste.

The scottish Salmon (Label Rouge) is prepared using a well-known method in Japan to remove the smell characteristic of salmon.

The white fish is the world-famous hamachi, a popular and unique fish with a very oily aroma and taste. Sea bass and sea bream, on the other hand, are prepared using a technique known as kombu-jime, which is very common in Japan and gives them a rich aromatic finish.

I distinguish myself from other restaurants by adding a little extra work to every fish. This is different from restaurants that simply cut up the fish and make sushi.
